Turnover: €27,888,666,000

Net profit: €9,169,982,000

Staff (Ireland): 3,200

Head of Irish operations: Dr Paul Duffy, vice president, External Supply Operating Unit, Pfizer Global Supply, Ireland

Sector: Life sciences

► Pfizer is one of Ireland's largest pharmaceutical sector investors and employers.

One of the first pharmaceutical companies to locate in Ireland (1969), Pfizer has a rich heritage of innovation and expansion over a 40 year period and currently employs over 3,000 across locations based in Cork, Dublin and Kildare.

Pfizer's business interests in Ireland are diverse with the Irish arm of the company manufacturing some of Pfizer's best-selling and newest medicines including Viagra (urology), Sutent (oncology), Enbrel (rheumatology) and Prevenar (vaccines). Ireland is a leading manufacturing base for Pfizer globally, exporting to global markets.

In July 2013, Pfizer announced that it planned to invest $130m in two of its Irish manufacturing sites - $100m in the Grange Castle site in Dublin and $30m in the company's Ringaskiddy site in Cork.

Speaking at the announcement, Dr Paul Duffy, vice president and head of Pfizer's Irish operations said: "Our Irish operations are significant and we have excellent colleagues across our sites, dedicated to the highest standards of manufacturing quality and excellence.

This additional scale and capability arising from these investments ensure both sites are well-placed for the future within the Pfizer's global supply network. The $30m investment in Ringaskiddy, which was opened on May 1st 2014 will allow the Cork plant to begin making drugs from the company's R&D pipeline for the clinical trial phase, adding to the capability of the Irish operations. The $100m investment in Grange Castle is to create additional manufacturing capacity by expanding the unit that produces protein drug substance using mammalian cell culture biotechnology. This unit makes drug substance for Pfizer's biologic rheumatoid arthritis treatment and a new production line will be established that will increase capacity and thereby double productivity.

At the time of going to press, Pfizer was in the process of making a €77bn formal bid for AstraZeneca, one of Britain's largest pharmaceuticals groups. Pfizer has until May 26th to make a formal bid for the company.

CRH

Turnover: €18,030,999,385

Net profit: Not filed

Head of Irish operations: Albert Manifold, chief executive

► From the merger in 1970 of Cement Limited (established 1936) and Roadstone Limited (established 1949), CRH has grown from being the sole producer of cement and the principal producer of aggregates, asphalt and concrete products in Ireland to a focused and diversified building materials group that manufactures and distributes a full range of building material products.

From its initial moves overseas in 1973 to the Netherlands with the acquisition of Van Neerbos, (a Dutch-based concrete products and builders merchant) and to the US in 1978 with the acquisition of Amcor, (a concrete products company), CRH has grown both organically and by acquisition, developing a core competence in sourcing and delivering value-creating acquisitions across its business footprint.

CRH today is a diversified building materials group with operations in 35 countries, which employs approximately 76,000 people at over 3,400 locations across the world.

The company's operations now focus on three closely related core businesses: primary materials, value-added building products and building materials distribution.

Newly appointed chief executive of CRH, Albert Manifold has been with CRH for over 15 years. Manifold joined the company in 1998 as finance director for CRH's Europe Materials division where he helped to build CRH's position in Eastern Europe.

In 2004, he became Group development director and in 2007 he was appointed managing director of CRH Europe Materials. During this time, he led CRH's initial entry into Asia, playing a leading role in building the company's positions in China and India. Prior to joining CRH, Manifold was COO of a private equity group.

CRH is a constituent member of the FTSE 100, ISEQ 20, Euro Stoxx 50, Euro Stoxx Select Dividend 30 equity indices and its shares are listed on London Stock Exchange and Irish Stock Exchange in the form of American Depositary Shares.
